
The Technical Entrepreneurial Community

Social Networking & Venture Recruiting Service

Presented by

Jerrid Matthews

President, Technical Entrepreneurial Community

“... to create a culture of entrepreneurship within the technical community of UCLA by offering seminars on entrepreneurial education and creating an environment for students to discuss, network, educate and start companies”

Our Goal This Year

To create programs that help student teams to create startups!

Program Overview

- Provide comfortable setting for like-minded entrepreneurial students across all majors to connect and explore venture ideas around a single topic of interest

Project Description

- Develop a Social Networking & Venture Recruiting Service for entrepreneurial minded UCLA students to showcase their skills and projects, connect with others, and join business ventures
 - ie: Engineer, Lawyer, MBA, etc

Welcome to the Thinktank Recruiting Service To the Dreamers at UCLA

Consider the following scenarios:

- You have a vision and need a team to make it real
- You have skills that you wish to bring to a team
- You'd like to meet others who resonate with your passions

If any of the above is true, Thinktank will provide the environment and resources where student entrepreneurs can take the first step toward turning their ideas into reality: assembling a team. You can find at least one co-founder who'll get your back in times of need, celebrate your first round of fundraising, and pop the champagne at your IPO!

- Update ventures
- Update co-founders
- Update skills needed
- Update specializations needed
- Find a venture
